

Important Updates from The Family History Guide Blog

... See the latest news about your free learning and training site for family history! In the 05/18/2020 edition:

The Family History Guide Twitter Page Takes Flight

By Bob Taylor on May 17, 2020 07:21 am

Due to various reasons, the Twitter page for The Family History Guide has not seen much activity for the last few months. Until now ... We have relaunched our Twitter page at a new location: <https://twitter.com/seethefhguide> We are redoubling our efforts to provide timely and useful tweets, with links and photos. In The Family History Guide, you can find our...

Spring Cleaning with The Family History Guide

By Bob Taylor on May 17, 2020 07:03 am

The Family History Guide has grown by leaps and bounds over the past few months. We are bringing you more content, more links, and more country pages for example. Also, website platforms such as FamilySearch, Ancestry, MyHeritage, and Findmypast continue to make updates to their websites as well. So now is a good time for some "spring cleaning" on The...

Who's Interviewing You? How to Tell Your Story

By Zach Matthews on May 16, 2020 08:19 pm

There are many instances where someone asks us something about our past. It may be a new found friend or our children and grandchildren, with such questions as, "What was it like?" or "How did you two meet?" They usually are not seeking for one-liners like "It was quite difficult," or "We met at high school." Rather, they want stories...

Closing Comments: Here's My Story about Bob Taylor and The Family History Guide

Thank goodness for Bob Taylor, Development Director, at The Family History Guide because every update is incredible. Never take their updates lightly because they are literally working over time during this coronavirus pandemic. Bob and I attended BYU together as music majors while I was working on my doctorate and playing in the same jazz band. Bob is an excellent trumpet player and jazz musician as well as a colleague over the years and now in family history. The Family History Guide with Bob Taylor's leadership is a premier learning site with links to over 1000 articles and videos, all organized in a step-by-step learning approach that helps you find what you need - when you need it. It is featured on the front page of the FamilySearch portal site for nearly 5,000 Family History Centers worldwide, with visitors from over 120 countries.

