

Don't Hesitate to be Creative with the Video Creation Process

As much as genealogists are constantly gathering family history artifacts and stories, perhaps its time to create your own podcasts in gathering even more information. Lisa Louise Cooke offers an incredible series of notes for you with handy step-by-step procedures on how to accomplish this offensive strategy. Click here and you will not be disappointed.

For those of you who don't know Lisa, she is a no-nonsense gal who knows how to get both the job started and finished for closure. For six months I studied virtually with her and what a wonderful person she is in the field of genealogy. In the last posting that I did yesterday, her interviewing skills are stellar with Daniel Horowitz. Now it is time to learn from the "master podcaster" by going to the previously cited link above.

Open-Ended Goals: Never Say Never Because You Can Do It

There are no magical secrets in being a successful genealogist unless you make the efforts and the Lord will bless you accordingly. Fortunately in my 50+ years of family history pursuits, I have met numerous individuals who were magnetic to me and got me to go to the next level of research. Success doesn't necessarily come easy and with an end goal of communicating with ones extended family, the doors of in locating information about deceased family members will be easier to find. The 21st century is the century of networking and through technology, new worlds of achievements are possible. The purpose of this Facebook group is that there are many experts out there in previously 1) posted web sites, 2) article postings, 3) books, 4) magazines, 5) local family history centers and other timely resources who follow this Facebook group. Some of our followers presently serve in local family history centers for example. Let us know what are your challenging research needs and don't be surprised if others can offer you with suggestions and inspiration. Again, my successes have been accumulated over time by interacting with others. Faith without works can be very frustrating. Having attainable goals is the first level of reality. Now let the process begin and how can we help you! Never say never even when success is difficult to obtain.

Remember, Lisa Louise Cooke's weekly podcasts occur every Thursday morning at 10 MDT. To follow her, subscribe to her podcasts and you'll receive weekly reminders. In the meantime, rebroadcasts are available if you should ever miss them. See <https://lisalouisecooke.com/podcasts/> and repeats can also be found on YouTube.com

Closing Comments

Below are some instructional videos I created while in Poland with my genealogist for Roslyn being able to learn how to extract Polish church records in Latin. The second series of videos below deal with original research on location in Krolik Polski, Poland again with my professional genealogist. What a special “keepsake” moments to capture in a “live” video recording that I will always have in my memory bank that I can share with my family and grandchildren now and in the future. Note: all extractors in the Team Kuzmich Extraction Project for FamilySearch are required to view and study these two videos as a course of instruction.

How To Successfully Extract Catholic Church Records in Poland!

Below are two outstanding video tutorials that simplifies how to extract (index) all the fields found in Polish Catholic records.

1. http://www.kuzmich4.com/Tadeusz/2012-05-16 08.02 New meeting.wmv Extraction tutorial - part 1 with Roslyn and Tadeusz
2. http://www.kuzmich4.com/Tadeusz/2012-05-18 12.50 New meeting.wmv Extraction tutorial - part 2 with Roslyn and Tadeusz

Latest Wołoszynowicz Family History Research: Part 1

This video, part 1, represents the latest Wołoszynowicz family history research for 16 generations in Krolik Polski, Poland from 1559 to 1874.

Latest Wołoszynowicz Family History Video: Part 2

This video, part 2, represents the latest Wołoszynowicz family history research for 16 generations in Krolik Polski, Poland from 1559 to 1874.